These gentlemen are bringing the news that the Japanese government has not decided to let the contract for four new battleships to American shipbuilders, two of which would be constructed in this city, as announced by William E. Curtism, who arrived from the Orient on the last trip of the Gaelic.

The Japanese government has not let any contracts for additions to its navy to American or other foreign shipbuilders, for the reason that, until the imperial diet meets in November, the minister of marine will not know just what money will be at his service. Even after the appropriations are made, it is doubtful if any contracts will be made with American shipbuilders, at least not for some time, the reason being that the people of the mikado's empire have become suddenly impressed with the idea that they can construct their own battleships and cruisers. This decision of Japan, of the Japanese maritime patronage.

Mr. Scott discovered one thing in Japan and that is that the Japanese haval department is not as prone to admire the English style of marine architecture, account couring across that are proposed to the English style of marine architecture, account couring across that are proposed to the English style of marine architecture.

It is getting monotonous and the owners think it is about time to develop something which will enable them to form an estimate of the size of the body. The mill is ready and waiting for water, when the Sunshine will become the centre of great activity.

The Geyser is now operating very smoothly under the superintendency of Ed. Stewart. There is more than enough water to run the mill to its full capacity on the day shifts, and a large tonnage of ore is being put through. In the mine a much smaller force of miners are employed than formerly, but they seem to have no trouble in keeping the mill supplied with ore.

After this is disposed of it is said there will be a special competition for original designs of war vessels open to the world. In the competition Mr. Scott thopes to succeed in getting a plum or two. The Cramps will also make a strong effort in the same direction.

We rather think this will make the theorists and experts scratch their heads. Since the purchase by the Mercur company of the Mattle No. 4 the stock of the company is climbing rapidly.
